MEMORIES OF THE CLASS OF '44

If you had chanced upon the L. C. QUADRANGLE on September 7, 1940, you would have found many a lowly freshman groping her way into the halls of her new Alma Mater. We were FRESHMEN from the tops of our new permanents to the tips of our clean saddle shoes.

At first we marveled at the friendliness of the upperclassmen—especially the sophomores! Oh, those lovely girls!!!

But there came a time (3 a. m., it was) when we wondered how anything this side of a concentration camp could be so gruesome.

We bowed and scraped and recited and apologized, and then bowed and scraped some more . . .

Why, they couldn't do this to us. We were tax - paying, law - abiding citizens! Why, we'd . . .

But all our threats came to naught, for after initiation we forgot our persecution, and began to regain a small portion of our self-confidence.

The juniors then adopted us, and mysterious gifts began to pop up most unexpectedly. How wonderful to learn your sister's identity and appreciate her even more.

Our first college graduation left us in awe. We said tearful goodbyes to our classmates, and realized suddenly that we were no longer college freshman. We were the most angelic of sophomores. No, we wouldn't treat the freshmen as we had been treated . . .

The sophomore year dawned, and we sophs condescended to meet the freshmen, and give them the benefit of our experience as college students. Initiation proved to be much harder on us than on the freshmen. The sea food was especially trying.

Came December and war! We skipped lunch to hear the President's message to Congress. We began First Aid courses, and we spent hours swathing our friends in bandages.

It was even harder to say goodbye to our friends this year. Our sister class was graduating, and we really hated to see them go. When they took their tables we gave them a supper banquet, and lots of money, too. And, oh, the tears we shed on Graduation Day.

Our junior year gave us added responsibility, and perhaps a shade of dignity. Many of our classmates had not returned, and we missed them deeply.

We acquired freshmen sisters, and tried to shelter them from the evils which had befallen us. We lived in Residence Hall (later named Pitts) and we spent most of our time taking showers, and bouncing on our luscious beds.

Classes became more difficult, and we chose our major subjects. No more changing of minds now—

We began to realize too that our college days were half gone. Junior privileges seemed grand, but we found that we had very little time to use them.

As the days passed, we began to realize, also, that we must soon assume the leadership of all campus activities. We were flattered, but very frightened also. We recalled how we, as freshmen, had admired and respected the seniors, and we wondered if we could ever be good examples to our younger classmates.

The first week of our senior year was a jumble of disappointment, happiness, preparation and surprise. We scoured the city for caps and gowns. We were forced to tell the new students that we were seniors! They thought we were freshmen!!

The first Sunday morning we donned our black academic attire and marched in to church. We felt all eyes upon us; and we sincerely hoped everyone would know from that day forward that we were seniors!

Classes crashed down upon us as never before, and we spent endless hours reading parallel. The line of the campus was: "If anyone wants me, I'm in the library."

We attended initiation in a group and our sentiments were divided between the poor frosh and our sister sophs. Oh, the responsibility of being a senior.

Christmas holidays and then exams, and we settled down to our last semester of college. Our senior privileges did us little good; for we had little time, and there was a definite manpower shortage. We went on a money-making campaign and derived the name of "Bologna Queens" for the tons of sandwiches we sold.

With spring came comprehensives and recitals. The grand recitals showed everyone what we had known all the time—that we had the most talented class ever. (We aren't a bit conceited.)

The last two weeks of school were busy ones for us. We divided our time between exams, parties, and a general good time. Graduation gifts made the mail call especially exciting.

SENIOR STORE

And we donned our caps and gowns dozens of times "just to see how they looked."

Commencement Sunday gave us our first taste of the great occasion; and we had already been made members of the Alumnae Association.

At midnight we sang our goodbyes to our beloved classmates and we felt as if we couldn't possibly leave them.

The great day dawned. Our graduation day. The day that we'd waited and worked for. We put on our robes for the final ceremony, and with it acquired a dignity which we had not thought possible.

Clutching our diplomas we walked out of Dobbs to receive the congratulations of our friends and parents.

We glanced toward Smith and remembered the first time we ever saw it; and through our minds passed the many memories of the Class of '44.

ANNUAL PUBLICATION OF LAGRANGE COLLEGE, LAGRANGE, GA.

The Editor and Business Manager Talk It Over . . .

We have not tried to unify this book with an elaborate theme; we have chosen rather to give you a sketch of life at L. C. There is something about our school; it is difficult to put into words. We feel it in our hearts. It is this spirit that we are seeking to express.

There is something that binds us together; maybe it's friendship; maybe it's ideals; maybe it's inspiration, or maybe it's just LaGrange College.

PAULA COPELAND, Editor

PELLIE JONES, Business Manager.

To JAMES BAILEY BLANKS

For his sympathetic concern for us and our problems—

For his ability to make us see the brighter side of life—

For his loyalty and devotion to LaGrange College and to all that she stands for—

We dedicate this our 1944 QUADRANGLE.

HYMN TO LAGRANGE

*We raise a voice to you, LaGrange,
We'll sing thy praises ever;
Though we may never from thy halls
A century's secrets sever.
Thy name we'll sing in endless praise,
High on thy hill acclaim,
A symbol to us of wisdom sought
Fore'er in our hearts remain.*

*Glory shall echo through thy halls
And to our hearts return;
And when our college days are o'er,
Deep in our memory burn.
Thy glory shall we spread abroad,
A tribute would we pay;
Thy spirit that is our heritage
Shall live in our hearts for aye.*

MARIAN WILLIAMS, '44.

MISS MAIDEE

"Behold the faithfulness of this one who has gone from us for a while. Whether it was assuming duties within the family circle of being a foster-mother, or witnessing in a foreign land for the Master whom she served or teaching in our beloved College, or praying and working silently with a few friends for a cause she believed to be right and just, or walking alone among the shadows of suffering in a fatal illness genuine faithfulness to God was the center around which all other things were arranged in their true proportion."

REV. CHARLES S. FORESTER.

Administration

Our President

HUBERT T. QUILLIAN

May I assume the role of an arm-chair strategist and proudly predict "Victory for '44." This is the theme of our thinking, Victory for You—"you who have come up through great tribulation and now stand forth radiant" in this shining hour of your college career. Just as in Havana, Cuba, there is a magnificent diamond embedded in the marble floor in the rotunda of the capitol under the dome, from which all the highways across the island are measured; so, in a real sense, all the future begins from here, in this hour and place in which you stand today. Victory involves vision and valor and virtue—vision of a new heaven and a new earth, valor that courageously carries on until that vision becomes living reality, and virtue, that is, goodwill converting the knowledge that is power into service for all mankind. "The world is forever new to hands that keep it new."

Yours for Victory for '44,

A handwritten signature in dark ink, appearing to read "H. T. Quillian". The signature is fluid and cursive, with the first letters of the first and last names being capitalized and prominent.

The Student Government Association is the symbol for the democratic ideal of student life on the campus. Every student is a member of the Association, and with the aid of the Student Council seek to uphold those high standards of living and scholarship on the campus that characterize the highest and best in Christian living.

First and foremost in importance is the orientation of freshmen in the fall. The Junior-Freshman Wedding and the signing of pledges is the formal ceremony giving new students full membership. This year the Association made the first contribution from the student body as an organization or as individuals to the endowment fund.

The Student Government seeks to help the student in every way. Our aim is to be a friend in the truest sense of the word—to make honor, truth, cooperation, and service the byword of not only our college days but our future lives.

The Y. W. C. A. is a voluntary religious movement which encourages Christian youth in spiritual and social growth. It is the purpose of this organization to increase awareness among our student group and to place special emphasis upon creative living in which students find their best and truest service.

CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

Week-day vesper services are conducted by the students. In addition there is morning watch each Sunday, and twice monthly there are Sunday Vesper Recitals presented by local artists and students. These recitals are attended by the people of LaGrange as well as by students.

During the first week of school the nightly vesper services were conducted by the major organizations on the campus to acquaint the new students with some of our activities. In arranging the other vesper services the Methodist Student Movement, the Baptist Student Union, the Freshman Commission and the program chairman of the Y. W. C. A. have cooperated.

The Freshman Commission is a division of the Y., and was organized several years ago to give interested new students experience in the work of the Y. Vivian Smith, the Freshman Representative to the Cabinet, is chairman of the group. The other members are Betty Wright, Mary Alice Adams, and Marion Middlebrooks.

The Candle-light Recognition Service in which all new resident students became members was held in Dobbs Auditorium in October. Religious Emphasis Week was in November and was conducted by Mr. Chester W. Quimby. During this month, too, a very successful campaign in behalf of the World Student Service Fund was conducted. All classes contributed money they had obtained by various projects.

At Thanksgiving, baskets of groceries were given to several needy families of LaGrange. One of the highlights of every year is the Christmas party given for the servant force. There was a Christmas tree, and a program was presented by the servant force.

Delegates were sent to the summer Y. W. C. A. Conference held this year at Berea College in Berea, Kentucky.

There has been a wonderful spirit of cooperation and helpfulness on the part of the students and faculty as a whole in response to any request for assistance in this work. Much interest has been manifested in the service of worship and all have been well attended.

"I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly."

The Curtain Raisers, under the sponsorship of the speech and drama department, has for its purpose promoting interest in dramatics and developing individual dramatic tendencies. The organization includes all speech students and all other students accepted by the members after a try-out. All special students of the department are associate members of the group.

The first production of the year was a series of two one-act plays followed by a tea in the studio for our patrons. The casts of this years' six major productions have consisted mostly of girls. The program included Schubert Alley, Cry Havoc, Hans Brinker, and One Sunday Afternoon.

The Radio Theater, a branch organization, has presented a weekly program of one-act plays over the local radio station WLAG.

The officers of the Junior Curtain Raisers are—Jane Crayton, President; Sally Callaway, Vice-President; Dallis Johnson, Secretary; Render Crayton, Treasurer.

The music and voice departments furnished all entire act music. The dramatic department assisted the voice and music departments in presenting the Gilbert and Sullivan opera Iolanthe. The Curtain Raisers cooperated with the Chapel Choir in the annual Christmas pageant. This year a one-act play, "A Miracle for Mary" was presented. Beth McKee, a speech student under the direction of Mrs. Alice Atwood Williams, designed and constructed the scenery.

The International Relations Club has as its purpose the study and discussion of history as it is daily being made in national and international events, events that are vitally important both to the present and to the future. The desire of the club is to seek a thoughtful and intelligent interpretation of modern affairs. The club is composed of girls who have indicated their interest in this phase of study by majoring or minoring in history, or by the careful study they have given this subject. The aim of the club is not to express itself by a large membership but rather by its earnest endeavor.

RELATIONS CLUB

The club is under the auspices of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace Organization from which it receives annually eight to sixteen books of current interest in the political, economic, and historical fields. It is also a member of the Georgia International Club, and of the southeastern district of International Relations Clubs which meets annually. This year the convention was held at the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina in Greensboro. Katherine Walker and Pellie Jones were delegates from L. C.

There is, in all of us, a touch of the spirit of adventure; whether it be exploring the wonders of nature, delving into the mysteries of science, or merely traveling up and down about the country. The publishing of the 1944 QUADRANGLE was a direct challenge to our spirit of adventure. To us it was an opportunity to portray LaGrange College at its truest and best.

Perhaps you are familiar with the trials and tribulations of the staff of a college annual. Or, perhaps, as a mere onlooker, you regard the work as either drudgery or child's play.

I do not mean to be personal, but may we tell you what it means to us—from our extremely prejudiced viewpoint.

To begin with, we've loved planning the QUADRANGLE. To us it was a mass of ideas, secrets, pictures, and words which must be organized. By and large, it was an enormous undertaking.

Sara and Dot went ad-collecting; and, as a result of their charm and our reputation, they came back loaded with ads. They entrusted Pellie with the money; and under her brilliant management the QUADRANGLE had money to burn! Libba and Buddy spent endless hours trying to think up nice things to say about the seniors. And Beth got in everybody's hair by snapping the most candid shots with her giant camera. Marion threw together some drawings for the front of the book. And Martha hit a new high in speedy circulation of our precious volume. And I think Paula established residence in the QUADRANGLE room. But what a grand job she did over there!

We hope you like the 1944 QUADRANGLE as much as we've liked planning it for you. By and large, we've loved it!

The Chapel Choir consists of the most outstanding voices on the hill. Its repertoire contains not only sacred music, but semi-classical and popular songs as well. It has furnished music for the annual Christmas pageant, the North Georgia Methodist Conference, a broadcast over station WGST, and the light opera, Iolanthe in the spring.

The sextet has proven itself to be the most popular singing group on the campus, whether it be for civic organization, patriotic rallies, or the various churches of our community. They are well versed in classical and semi-classical music.

The Methodist Student Movement is a religious organization whose purpose is to promote Christian unity among our students with the local church and with Methodist students on other college campuses. Other activities included a delegation to the State Retreat, and deputations to and from other colleges. Local projects were open house held at the church every Sunday for service men and young people, worship services on the campus and at the church, and contributions in cooperation with welfare organizations.

ART CLUB

Art in Everyday Life has a particular significance. It implies the belief that art may be so much a part of our everyday living that it will help us do more beautifully the simple homely things of life as well as the more unusual. As we surround ourselves with beauty, art actually becomes a part of our life and personality; not to be set apart for occasional enjoyment, but rather to be sought and enjoyed in everything we do.

Blanton

Through its monthly meetings, the Art Club develops an appreciation of art in its members. The members have focused their attention on Contemporary American art and the lives of American painters. The club sponsors exhibits of art schools which are open to the public and thus arouses attention and interest of the townspeople in American art. Mrs. Williams is our sponsor and has helped to make the club the success it is.

To carry out its purpose, the promotion of interest in athletics and the development of the physical side of the individual, the Athletic Association has arranged a physical education program adequate to meet the needs of all the LC students.

Membership in the Georgia Athletic Federation of College Women assures the organization of latest trends of interest in athletics and the major problems confronting the athletic departments of the colleges of Georgia.

We are proud of our "L" Club this year because it is larger than ever before. The "L" Club is composed of those girls who have received their college letters. Letters are awarded on the basis of a point system and points may be acquired by making a college team, practicing a certain number of hours, participation in field day, and by keeping health month.

The girls who make the "L" Club should receive the highest tribute. It is not just the letter that a girl receives, but those numerous lessons that she is taught in deciding whether or not a thing is worth working for—those long tiresome hours of exercise, that refusing an invitation to a feast, that getting to bed on time—all go to make the "L" symbolic of many fine traits of character that a girl has to display if she earnestly desires a letter.

This year's tennis tournament was the best in many years—we give you the Tennis Champion, "Twink" Starr, and the runner-up, Betty Lewis.

STARR and LEWIS

These sophomores have always had a good soccer team, and hear they show us just how they acquired that skill—practice.

Our athletes have really gone in for tumbling; here we see them in an excellent pyramid—nice going girls!

Tennis has really been a favorite sport on our campus this year. We caught these four beauties on their way to the tennis court. By the way, they are all Juniors.

These freshmen are wicked volley ball players. We are really going to watch them field day because the way they look now they are going to be walking away with plenty of honors.

Miss Mac is a marvelous swimming instructor and, as you can see, the girls have really gone in for it; LC just can't be beat for beautiful girls.

Yep, the Seniors are still at it and from the looks of things, they are "in there pitching" a mighty good game of softball. The on-lookers do look rather bored, but then maybe they are on the opposing team.

OUR SUPERLATIVES

And they are just that—; chosen by popular vote, these girls are the ones who we think most nearly represent the true spirit of LaGrange College.

We think of our L. C. spirit as being made up of love, loyalty, service, and sacrifice. According to these qualities we chose from the senior class our Miss LaGrange College.

Campus activities mean much to L. C. girls. Each year we select the five who are most outstanding in these activities. They come from the sophomore, junior, and senior classes at large.

Our Miss Freshman possesses the qualities and characteristics which we ascribe to an ideal freshman.

Here they are—now see if you don't agree with us that they are truly—superlative.

The DUNSON MILLS

LaGrange, Georgia

Many years ago LaGrange was named by one of her first citizens "The City of Elms and Roses;" since that time she has also become the City of Cotton Mills; and her residents may justly feel a pride in either name.

THE DUNSON MILLS lie on the eastern edge of the city, between the Atlanta and West Point Railroad and the Atlanta Highway, Route 14. Its buildings and the grounds are among the most attractive in the South today. The main mill building and offices are surrounded by a wide expanse of velvety lawns, green the year 'round, and appropriately planted with flowering and evergreen shrubs. The mill building is of red brick with white trim, and has a base planting of shrubbery. The tenement village has some three hundred houses of three and four-room types, at all times kept freshly painted white, with green trim. Every home is provided with electric lights and running water and has ample room surrounding it for flowers and vegetable gardens, chickens and a cow if desired. The City of LaGrange last year erected in our village a most modern and commodious Grammar School Building for the children in our section. The school is equipped with a splendid kitchen and cafeteria, and has a beautiful auditorium. The Company operates at its own expense a well-equipped kindergarten for the small children. The Company also furnishes a two-story brick building for use as a meeting place for clubs, lodges, and community gatherings.

A full-time graduate nurse is regularly employed by the Company for the welfare of its employees and their families, and group life insurance at a very low rate is provided for all who wish it.

The Company a few years ago built two modern brick churches, one of Old English and one of Colonial design, and besides furnishing light, heat and janitor service for the congregations using them, also contributes substantially to the support of their resident pastors.

The Dunson Mills extend greetings and good wishes not only to the LaGrange College seniors of 1944 but to all the girls on the hill.

ATLANTA

If you had chanced upon the L. C. QUADRANGLE on September 7, 1940, you would have found many a lowly freshman groping her way into the halls of her new Alma Mater. We were FRESHMEN from the tops of our new permanents to the tips of our clean saddle shoes.

At first we marveled at the friendliness of the upperclassmen—especially the sophomores! Oh, those lovely girls!!! But there came a time (3 a. m., it was) when we wondered how anything this side of a concentration camp could be so gruesome.

We bowed and scraped and recited and apologized, and then bowed and scraped some more . . .

Why, they couldn't do this to us. We were tax - paying, law - abiding citizens! Why, we'd . . .

But all our threats came to naught, for after initiation we forgot our persecution, and began to regain a small portion of our self-confidence.

The juniors then adopted us, and mysterious gifts began to pop up most unexpectedly. How wonderful to learn your sister's identity and appreciate her even more.

Our first college graduation left us in awe. We said tearful goodbyes to our classmates, and realized suddenly that we were no longer college freshman. We were the most angelic of sophomores. No, we wouldn't treat the freshmen as we had been treated . . .

The sophomore year dawned, and we sophs condescended to meet the freshmen, and give them the benefit of our experience as college students. Initiation proved to be much harder on us than on the freshmen. The sea food was especially trying.

Came December and war! We skipped lunch to hear the President's message to Congress. We began First Aid courses, and we spent hours swathing our friends in bandages.

It was even harder to say goodbye to our friends this year. Our sister class was graduating, and we really hated to see them go. When they took their tables we gave them a supper banquet, and lots of money, too. And, oh, the tears we shed on Graduation Day.

Our junior year gave us added responsibility, and perhaps a shade of dignity. Many of our classmates had not returned, and we missed them deeply.

We acquired freshmen sisters, and tried to shelter them from the evils which had befallen us. We lived in Residence Hall (later named Pitts) and we spent most of our time taking showers, and bouncing on our luscious beds.

Classes became more difficult, and we chose our major subjects. No more changing of minds now—

We began to realize too that our college days were half gone. Junior privileges seemed grand, but we found that we had very little time to use them.

As the days passed, we began to realize, also, that we must soon assume the leadership of all campus activities. We were flattered, but very frightened also. We recalled how we, as freshmen, had admired and respected the seniors, and we wondered if we could ever be good examples to our younger classmates.

The first week of our senior year was a jumble of disappointment, happiness, preparation and surprise. We scoured the city for caps and gowns. We were forced to tell the new students that we were seniors! They thought we were freshmen!!

The first Sunday morning we donned our black academic attire and marched in to church. We felt all eyes upon us; and we sincerely hoped everyone would know from that day forward that we were seniors!

Classes crashed down upon us as never before, and we spent endless hours reading parallel. The line of the campus was: "If anyone wants me, I'm in the library."

We attended initiation in a group and our sentiments were divided between the poor frosh and our sister sophs. Oh, the responsibility of being a senior.

Christmas holidays and then exams, and we settled down to our last semester of college. Our senior privileges did us little good; for we had little time, and there was a definite manpower shortage. We went on a money-making campaign and derived the name of "Bologna Queens" for the tons of sandwiches we sold.

With spring came comprehensives and recitals. The grand recitals showed everyone what we had known all the time—that we had the most talented class ever. (We aren't a bit conceited.)

The last two weeks of school were busy ones for us. We divided our time between exams, parties, and a general good time. Graduation gifts made the mail call especially exciting.

And we donned our caps and gowns dozens of times "just to see how they looked."

Commencement Sunday gave us our first taste of the great occasion; and we had already been made members of the Alumnae Association.

At midnight we sang our goodbyes to our beloved classmates and we felt as if we couldn't possibly leave them.

The great day dawned. Our graduation day. The day that we'd waited and worked for. We put on our robes for the final ceremony, and with it acquired a dignity which we had not thought possible.

Clutching our diplomas we walked out of Dobbs to receive the congratulations of our friends and parents.

We glanced toward Smith and remembered the first time we ever saw it; and through our minds passed the many memories of the Class of '44.
